

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. A cosmetic handle comprising:
a substantially hollow transparent member; and a substantially transparent receptacle member adapted to house a display pattern, said receptacle being structured to enable it to be inserted into the substantially hollow transparent member to enable the display pattern to be visible at, at least two sides of the handle.
2. The cosmetic handle of claim 1, wherein the substantially hollow transparent member contains an oil, whereby the display pattern is visible through an oil interface.
3. The cosmetic handle of claim 1, wherein the substantially hollow transparent handle is provided at one end thereof with a brush.
4. The cosmetic handle of claim 1, wherein the transparent receptacle is sealed within the hollow transparent member by adhesives.
o the cap plate of the transparent receiver through adhesives.